Of course it is thus utilized and ultimately comes around as food, but it may be better to make a more direct use of it. The skim milk contains a valuable portion of that most nutritious food; in taking the cream, only a part of the nutriment is removed. The skimmilk is allowed to become slightly sour or "clabbered." The pan is then set upon a cool part of the stove to warm gently, or upon the top of a kettle of boiling water. It should get no warmer than the heat of new milk, when the whey will appear clear and separate from the curd. When separation takes place pour the whole into a bag of thin material, and hang to drain. When it ceases to drip, turn the curd from the bag and mix with salt and a little sweet cream. - American Agriculturist.

Spinach.

Of all the variety of growths that can be utilized as "greens," there is nothing which has gained and kept the place of spinach. Planted in the spring as early as the snow is off and the ground can be worked, it matures a crop in from six to eight weeks; it can be cut immediately and give place to other crops. For these reasons it is a desirable crop to raise. It requires a soil naturally fertile, and one that has been thoroughly manured for at least three consecutive years, and should least three consecutive years, and should have a heavy coat of manure soaked into have a heavy coat of manure soaked into the soil before sowing. The seed should be planted thickly in rows, one foot apart; should be hoed and kept clear of weeds till large enough to gather, which is best done by cutting the plant off just below the ground with a knife or hoe, taking care not to cut so high as to cut the plant in two. The root does not sprout the second time. The "Savoy Leaved," is a good kind to plant, having sot the Way to Do.

The treatment required for the disease which produces the condition of the horns known popularly as "hollow horn" is as follows: The most conspicious symptom is a general low fever, with heat or holdness or both alternating of the or coldness, or both alternating, of the ex-tremities, chiefly of the horns and ears. The membranes of the head are congest-ed or inflamed, and there is often a discharge from the nose. The first treat-ment consists of a brisk cooling purga-tive, such as one pound of epsom salts, if the horns and ears are hot and the muzzle dry; if the horns are cold and the muzzle dry; if the horns are cold and the nose is moist, a quart of linseed-oil should be given and turpentine should be freely rubbed about the roots of the horns and the ears. After the purgative, in either case warm gruels of linseed or bran should be given, with a teaspoonful of ginger, and the animal should be well nursed. A tarry stick should be stirted in the drinking water, or if it is not readily taken in this way a little tar should be rubbed on the tongue every day.—N. Y. Times.

There is a young editor wandering on the face of the earth who formerly published a paper at Storm Lake, lowa. He left there the day after the issue of his last paper, and is supposed to be crossing the State on foot to get away from an infuriated female populace. It seems there was a concert given by young ladies of the city, and the gallant young editor wrote it up in splendid shape. The same day he had visited a herd of short-horn cattle, owned by a farmer in the vicinity, and he wrote up the cattle also. The cross-eyed foreman of the office got the two articles mixed as follows: "The concert given last evening by sixteen of Storm Lake's most beautiful and interesting young ladies was highly appreciated. They were elegantly dressed and sang in a most charming manner, winning the plaudits of the entire audience, who pronounced them the finest shorthorns in the country. A few of them are of a rich brown color, but the majority are spotted brown and white. Several of the heifers were fine-boiled, tight-limbed animals, and promise to prove good property."—Peck's Sus.

THAT RICH EXPERIENCE.

A Free Press Interview Sustained and It Source Revealed.

(Detroit Free Press.) A few months ago an interview with a prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature at the sause no little composition among these The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuineness of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The seal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears below will abundantly show. In order, however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are herewith given from the interview in question.

After an exchange of couriesies and a few reminiscences about the war, in which the doctor, was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance, upon which he said:

"Yes, I have improved in health since you last saw me, and I hope also in many other ways. One thing, however, I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor, to do, and that is I have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now, I am a physician, and of the 'old achool' order, too; but I have, after years of experience and observation come to the conclusion that truth but I have, after years of experience and observation, come to the conclusion that truth is the highest of all things, and that if prejudice or bigotry stand in the way of truth, so much the worse for them—they are certain to be crushed sooner or later. Why, when I knew you in Detroit, I would no sooner have thought of violating the code of ethics laid down by the profession, or of prescribing anything out of the regular order, than I would of amputating my hand. Now, however, I prescribe and advise those things which I believe to be adapted to cure, and which my experience has proven to be such."

"How did you come to get such heritical ideas as these, doctor?"

"Oh, they are the result of my experience and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver, and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in various parts of the body; a lack of interest in everything around me; a loss of appetite; headaches; all these diaagreeable symptoms were added to pains which were both scute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to bealth in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was this that proved a revelation to me. That was the starting point, and my prejudices faded rapidly after that, I can assure yes. I went to reading extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and since that time I have discovered many things of real value to humanity. Why, only a few days ago I advised a lady who was auffering from a serious female difficulty and displacement to use the same remedy which cured me. I saw ther this morning and she is around, as usual. We have no right in the medical fraternity to sit back and declare you (which you can publish or not as you see it) that I had debated for a long time whether I would ahake off some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and tell the truth, or sot. When I looked back, and thought of the tortures, like those described by Dante is his trip to the infernal regions, which I endured from dyspepsia, and recalled how much I would have given at that time for the relief which I have since obtained, I determined that I would take the step so long meditated, and thereby discharge a duty to my fellow men. If I could thereby save one poor mortal one night of the terrible suffering I endured. I would be fully natisfied, be the other consequences what they might.

My dyspeptic condition was produced by a torpid liver, which did not, as a consequence, remove the bile from the blood. This produced derangement of the stomach, inflammation of its coats, dyspepsis, constipation, headache, depression of spirits, yellow complexion, fat-covered eyes, chills and fever; in short, I was miserable to the last degree. I appealed in vain to my books, to my skill, and to my fellow physicians. The mystery of my fill-health grew deeper. I traveled everywhere—exhausted all authorized expedients—but to no purpose!

appealed in vain to my books, to my skill and to my fellow physicians. The mystery of my ill-health grew deeper. I traveled everywhere—exhausted all authorised expedients—but to no purpose!

When in this frame of mind, desperately in need of help, but expecting none, one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to some unusual cures wrought by a prominent remedy and urged me to try it. I emphatically declined. But secretly, and with the firm determination that I would never let anybody know what I had done, I began its use. It was only an experiment, you know, but for that matter, all medical treatment is experimental. Well, to make a long and surprising story short, I experienced a sort of physical revolution. My skin got a better color. My liver resumed its functions. I no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathertics. My headaches disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not convinced. "Nature did it," I reasoned. But, determined to pursue the investigation to the extreme, while I was in active work, I tried the effect of the remedy on my patients afflicted with kidney, liver and urinary diseases, watching every development exercially and studiously. Then I was completely disarmed, for the remedy atood every test imposed.

Under such convincing circumstances, the matter of confessing my cure became a question of conscience and of duty to humanity. "Here is a remedy," I said, "that has done for me what the best medical skill of the country could not accomplish"—and as an honorable man I will not suppress the facts. I therefore write you and most unbesitatingly assert that for all diseases of the kidneys, liver, stomach or urinary organs which are amenable to treatment, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever known or used, and since physicians have so much ill-success in the treatment of diseases of these organs, I am prepared to accept all the consequences when I say that they are, if conscientious, in duty bound to use this pure vegetable compound in their practi
